Native Awareness Week

Key social, legal and educational issues relating to the native community will be probed during the Third Annual Native Awareness Week 12 to 16 March.

Sponsored by the University of Alberta Native Students Club in cooperation with the Office of the Advisor on Native Affairs, the special week will consist of open workshops and forums as well as the official opening of the Native Students Club Lounge in Athabasca Hall on 13 March. On a festive note, the Muskawachees Junior Dancers from Hobbema will perform in CAB, HUB, SUB Theatre and the Education Centre throughout the opening day of Native Awareness Week.

Three workshops are scheduled for 14 March in room 2-102, Education North Building. The first workshop, "Cultural Awareness in the Classroom," will be held from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. under the direction of Grace Hodgson, a graduate student in the Department of Educational Foundations.

The other workshops are on "Post-Secondary Education and the Native Student" (1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.) and "Native Culture" (2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.). Carl Urion, Assistant Professor of Educational Foundations, and Ed Metatawabin, Assistant to the Advisor on Native Affairs, will lead the Post-secondary Education workshop and Albert Lightning, an elder from Hobbema, will lead the third workshop. The audience will be given an opportunity to pose questions during and after the workshops.

A "Land Claims Forum" will take place on 15 March from 12 noon to 3 p.m. in room 115, Education North Building. The forum will feature addresses by Richard Lightning, head of the Indian Association of Alberta's Research Department on Treaty and Aboriginal Rights; Richard Long, a lawyer working with the Sawridge Band in Slave Lake; and Harry Daniels, president of the Native Council of Canada.

Native Awareness Week also includes an "Elders Forum" to be held on 16 March from 12 noon to 2 p.m. in SUB Theatre.

Search Committee for Vice-President (Academic)

Election of Two Full-time Faculty Members

At the time of going to press, Folio had received the names of seventeen persons who have been nominated to serve as Full-Time Faculty Members on the Search Committee for Vice-President (Academic). The people nominated are listed below in order to assist the electoral process. Inasmuch as there are more than twelve candidates, a preliminary election will be held to determine the six leading candidates. The final day for receipt of ballots by the Secretary to General Faculties Council will be Monday, 5 March. Following the preliminary election, a final (preferential) ballot will be distributed to eligible voters.

Folio regrets that the exigencies of time and space do not permit more than the most cursory review of the candidates. It is suggested, therefore, that those who are eligible to cast ballots first contact each of the aspirants to learn more about their individual qualifications.

"Colloquy" is a column devoted to the free expression of opinions held by members of the University community. The criteria for the use of this space are simple. Submissions should be no longer than 1,000 words, and they must be typed and double spaced. Submissions must deal with issues that are of general interest to the University community, and they should be signed. While Folio is the official newsletter of the University of Alberta, the opinions expressed here will not necessarily reflect University policy or the opinions of the Editor. Submissions should be sent to Colloquy, Office of Community Relations, 423 Athabasca Hall. Submissions will not be returned, and the Editor cannot guarantee publication.

Confident that Mr. d'Alquen needs no chivalric gesture to rescue his besieged expressions on the evils of trades-unionism I am addressing this colloquium to the fractured and somewhat splenetic response submitted by Mr. Loftus (Folio, 15 February, page 2).

To begin with, Mr. Loftus, while the drift of your response is, by your own admission, polemical, it is certainly not limpid, that is, pellucid, or clear. While you accuse Mr. d'Alquen of his failure to document the degenerative practices of modern trade unions, nowhere in your response is there any attempt to document their alleged responsibility to society. The furthest you go in this respect is to say that unionism "can be broad minded" . . . "may be appropriate" etc. A pretty putative defense and one hardly supported by the weight of evidence you find so lacking in Mr. d'Alquen's article.

Well here is a piece of documentary evidence to try on for size. Some years after the last war a dispute arose at the Vickers shipyard at Barrow-in-Furness in England because a man from one union had turned on an oil valve which was supposed to be turned on by a man from another union. The resulting strike, which lasted for many months, impoverished the whole town, caused everyone a great deal of hardship and caused many small businesses to close. This kind of know-nothing mentality and restrictive trade practice has already made its appearance in Canada among school teachers for whom the largest virtue is often the larger pay-checke not the care of children entrusted to their wardship. It doesn't take a gargantuan mind to extrapolate the analogy to professors.

While no one will deny that real grievances existed, which only determined action overcame, to the subsequent benefit of workers, and management, all over the world, permit me to quote from a recent work by Peter Ustinov: . . . "in every human endeavour it is success which is the challenge to the highest aspirations even more than failure." Mr. Ustinov was, incidentally, talking about trades-unions.

Since you allude to "historical fact" and the bravery of those who stood up "to be counted" perhaps you might also have conceded that the record of the post-war world, at least in the heavily industrialized countries of the West, does not reflect very well on the magnanimity of those who benefited from the courageous activities of a few of the pioneers of the union movement. If anything, the recent record suggests that unions have been grasping, selfish and often without scruples in achieving their ends and also often guilty of flagrant violations of the law they are so quick to invoke when placed at an imagined disadvantage.

Perhaps the time has come again for standing up and being counted, but this time for resistance to herd instincts and bullying rather than for largely illusory slights. Mr. d'Alquen does not exaggerate when he alludes to the undemocratic and intolerant attitudes among many unions who sometimes resort to tactics of intimidation to coerce their members.

Somewhere along the way we have lost sight of the mutually beneficial contract between the willing worker and the willing employer. Both need each other and both need to be considered as individuals with the freedom to give or withhold labour, according to conscience, and to pursue a path which leads to their particular vision of an organized and constructive society. And here the unions have demonstrably failed since they tend to perpetuate the adversary situation out of which they were formed.

Surely by now the onus is on the unions, whether of academic staff or any other group, to demonstrate that their success will be "morally regenerative" and will mean the acceptance of responsibility rather than the creation of yet another group of privileged people with a licence, when miffed, to hold as hostages the freedom and security of every other group . . . or is it that you don't expect to receive Christmas cards next year?

Board Building Committee

The regular monthly meeting of the Board Building Committee was held on Monday, 19 February. The following topics were among those discussed.

Dentistry-Pharmacy Building—GSA Centre

The Building Committee agreed that existing emergency lighting in the GSA Centre in the Dentistry-Pharmacy Building is no longer adequate. At the request of the Physical Plant, therefore, the Committee approved the expenditure of some $190,000 to supply and install an emergency generator and lighting in the facility. The estimated completion date for the project is December 1979. Until then one should be careful.

South Entrance Civil-Electrical Engineering

At the request of the Campus Development Office, the BBC considered and approved a Capital Expenditure Authorization Request in the order of $86,000 for renovations to the major south entrance of the Civil-Electrical Engineering Building (the building which extends south from CAB to 89 Avenue).

According to Blake Pratt of the Campus Development Office, the present entrance and stairs of the first and second floors are not at all suited to accommodating large numbers of students at peak periods. The "crush space" is too small and there are no facilities for people confined to wheelchairs. In addition, "foot debris" brought in from the outside poses some problems for maintenance and for the security of those who use the building. It was noted that representatives of the Campus Development Office had observed as much as ½" to ¾" of slush accumulating on the stairs.

The solution to these problems, approved on Monday, 19 February, is the construction of a vestibule some 17' x 19' to provide a larger "crush space." The existing stairs will be removed and ramps will connect the new vestibule with the first and second floors. It is expected that construction will be completed by mid August.

North Power Plant

At its meeting on 19 February the BBC also approved a request that the west basement area of the North Power Plant, the eastern ground floor, and the eastern upper floor be renovated. These areas, which are at present partially unoccupied or used by the Department of Art and Design as studio space, will provide offices, meeting rooms, and a reading room for the Graduate Students' Association as well as upgraded studios for the Department of Art and Design. The basement area to be developed had also been considered for allocation to the Palaeontological Collection, but it was deemed that the area available would be insufficient for the collection. Essentially, at the end of construction in December 1980, the North Power Plant will be totally restored to a standard consistent with the present Graduate Students' Association quarters. It was also observed at the meeting of the BBC that the space to be developed is closely related to the "programme for decanting the Arts Building."

In a separate decision taken at the same meeting of the BBC, the contract for the renovations was awarded on a "cost plus fixed fee" basis to Poole Construction Limited—the firm which completed Phase I of the restoration of the North Power Plant so successfully. The project, which is to be funded from Unallocated Capital Interest in the fiscal year 1978-79, will cost in the order of $845,000. □
